American Academy of Religion Western Region

*California, Nevada, Arizona, Hawaii,
Guam, and the Pacific Islands*

Welcome to the Institute of Buddhist Studies!

Dear AAR Members and Colleagues, welcome to the Institute of Buddhist Studies for the 2018 Annual Meeting of the Western Region of the American Academy of Religion. This year's program has admitted approximately 150 papers in 24 Program Units.

The host for the 2018 meeting is the Institute of Buddhist Studies. Thank you to Scott A. Mitchell, Dean of Students and Faculty Affairs; David Matsumoto, President; Sayaka Inaishi; Helen Tagawa; Munir Jiwa for your generosity and gracious hospitality. If you see anyone from the Institute of Buddhist Studies, be sure to thank them for the time and energy put into ensuring the success of this year's conference.

Directions to each session have been marked with helpful signs, pointing you to your place of interest. If, for any reason, you are having trouble finding your place of interest, please contact the conference manager – Joseph Paxton – via email, Joseph.Paxton@cst.edu, or via cell phone, (480) 600-3727. It is requested that text and email be used as primary modes of communication for information, directions, and accommodations. If you are a unit chair, please call directly if you are experiencing technical difficulties and need immediate assistance.

Sunday Afternoon Business Meeting

In preparation for next year, we will hold our annual business meeting Sunday afternoon in the Lobby from 12:45 – 2:00 p.m. All attendees are invited to come, and lunche will be provided. We will update members on policy revisions, news, discuss administrative and organization details, and provide preliminary details of the upcoming 2019 conference at Arizona State University.

Acknowledgements

The American Academy of Religion, Western Region (AAR/WR) would like to express its thanks to the many people who came together to make this year's meeting possible.

We begin with the Institute of Buddhist Studies, which has shown such generosity, not only through sharing its campus, but also by making other appreciated contributions.

Institute of Buddhist Studies, Berkeley, CA

We gratefully acknowledge the generous support of the Institute of Buddhist Studies. In particular:

FRIDAY PRE-CONFERENCE, MARCH 23

9:30-Noon Women's Caucus Event - Writing Workshop - Encountering and Doing Justice to Environments Internal and External, Known and Othered (Room 130)

You are warmly invited to a writing retreat. For this lightly facilitated workshop, you are invited to bring an idea, proposal, draft, or paper to develop. There will be time for contemplative practice, conversation, writing, and informal snacks. Although all projects are welcome, participants will consider issues of solidarity, social justice, environmental justice, religion/science, feminist science, ecofeminism, and ecological feminisms in relation to the study of religion and theologies.

The AAR Western Region Women's Caucus event is free and welcomes people of goodwill of all genders to participate in restorative work. Registration will be available at the door, but RSVP by March 20 would be much appreciated. Please RSVP to Sarah Robinson-Bertoni.

12:00-5:00 AAR-WR Board Meeting – Conference Room 229

8:00-10:00 Queer Caucus Event - Queer View – “Performance As Activism” FREE EVENT
Location: First Congregational Church of Berkeley
2345 Chanting Way Berkeley, CA 94704

You're invited to this year's Queer Caucus event featuring one of the Sisters of Perpetual Indulgence, Sister Unity, and California drag icon, Eartha Madre for a performance using queer ritual as spiritual activism. A Q&A will follow the performance.

RSVP – queerstudies.aarwr@gmail.com

SATURDAY MORNING, MARCH 19
(10:15 – 11:00 a.m.)

Keynote (10:15 – 11:00 a.m.)

Kodo, Room 201

Speaker: Jane Naomi Iwamura, the University of the West

Title: “Meditations on Loving-kindness”

Bio: Jane Naomi Iwamura is Chair and Associate Professor of Religious Studies at University of the West. Dr. Iwamura's research focuses on Asian American religions, race and popular culture in the United States (with an emphasis on visual culture). Her publications include Virtual Orientalism: Religion and Popular Culture in the U.S. (Oxford 2011) and the co-edited volume, Revealing the Sacred in Asian and Pacific America (Routledge 2003). She has also written on Japanese American lived religions, as well as on the intersection of religion and Asian American literary production.

Abstract: In an age of inflammatory rhetoric, political anger, and growing tribalism, one may ask, “Whither kindness and human decency?” Measures in contemporary American society attempt to address the need to cultivate the impulse to look beyond oneself: compassion cultivation programs, “pay-it-forward” organizations, and kindness initiatives in schools. But what are the limits of these secular initiatives and how can a religious studies perspective enhance these efforts? Exploring the deep structures of kindness, specifically from the Buddhist perspective of loving-kindness, coupled with a critical understanding of our social environment may provide a path forward in enacting a more sustained environment in which social justice and compassion may thrive.
